Read questions 5 and 6 before listening to the passage.

Welcome back to Mindful Moments! Today, I want to get personal and talk about my journey with appearance anxiety. For years, I hated the way I looked—my nose felt too big, my skin wasn't clear enough, and I constantly compared myself to filtered photos on social media. The dissatisfaction with my appearance was overwhelming. I even avoided taking pictures with friends because I didn't think I looked good enough.

Eventually, I realized I was chasing unrealistic beauty standards. Gradually, I learned to focus on things I liked about myself, remembering my worth isn't tied to looks. I started valuing my unique traits and limiting social media to avoid comparisons. Now, I focus on health over appearance. If you're feeling the same way, remember: you're more than how you look. Embrace your uniqueness. (Nov. Unit 3)

- C 5. What was the main issue the speaker faced for years?
 (A) He had difficulty making friends due to his looks.
 (B) He struggled with his physical health.
(C) He disliked his physical features.
 (D) He lacked the confidence to go out in public.
- B 6. What strategy did the speaker use to combat his problems?
 (A) He sought guidance from a psychological professional.
(B) He reduced the time he spent on social media.
 (C) He joined a support group for appearance anxiety.
 (D) He started following beauty trends to improve his looks.
